SEARCHING IN AFRICA FOR EVIDENCE OF PREHISTORIC MAN

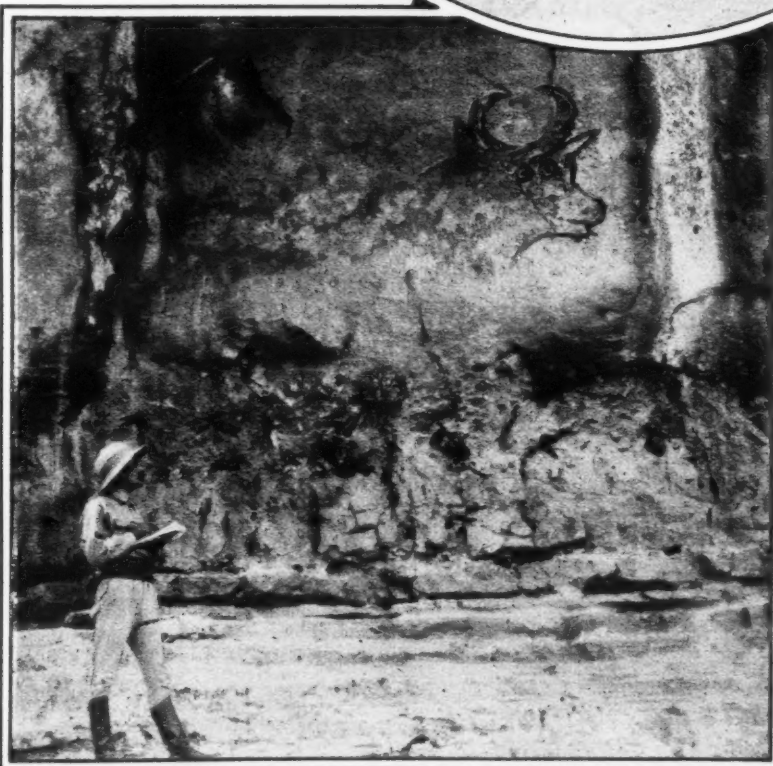

REPRESENTATIVES OF TWO CIVILIZATIONS: INTRODUCTION of Count de Prorok by Maurice Reygasse (in Military Uniform) to the Algerian Kaids Who Served as Guides in the Prehistoric Researches of the Franco-American Expedition. (Times Wide World Photos.)

THERE are few more fruitful fields for archaeological research, dealing especially with primitive man, than that furnished by North Africa in the region bordering on the Sahara Desert. Finds of great interest and marked scientific value have been made there by the Franco-American expedition under the joint leadership of Count Byron Khun de Prorok and Maurice Reygasse, administrator of the region of Tebessa and foremost authority in the world on the North African stone age. They were greatly aided in their explorations by native chiefs of the district, who led them to places known only to the tribes. Richest in results were a collection of Berber tombs hewn out of the side of a rocky cliff. Here flints were found estimated to be at least 50,000 years old, together with rare and curious pottery by ancient craftsmen. A skeleton was uncovered with anklets about the fleshless bones that dated back to the age of bronze. There were found also paintings in red ochre, that still retained its pristine brilliance, of oxen and antelopes belonging to species now extinct in that region, drawn with a skill seldom ascribed to such early artists.

LAST week a superb monument was unveiled with impressive ceremonies to the great explorer Samuel de Champlain at Orillia, Canada. The monument marks the advent of the white race into Ontario.

It will be remembered that Champlain made his journey of discovery into Ontario in 1615. That expedition was the explorer's deepest and boldest thrust into the heart of the North American continent.

It was at Cahiague, near the site on which Orillia now stands, that Champlain made his Winter quarters. Here, as the guest of the Huron Chief Darontal, he spent a greater length of time than at any other point in Ontario.

Page Ten

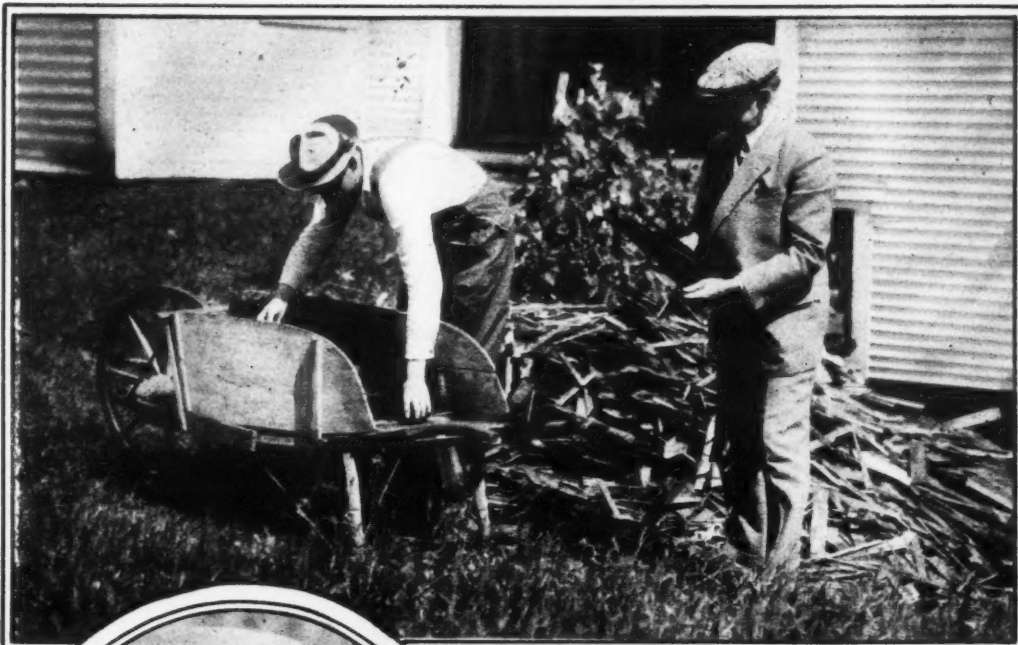

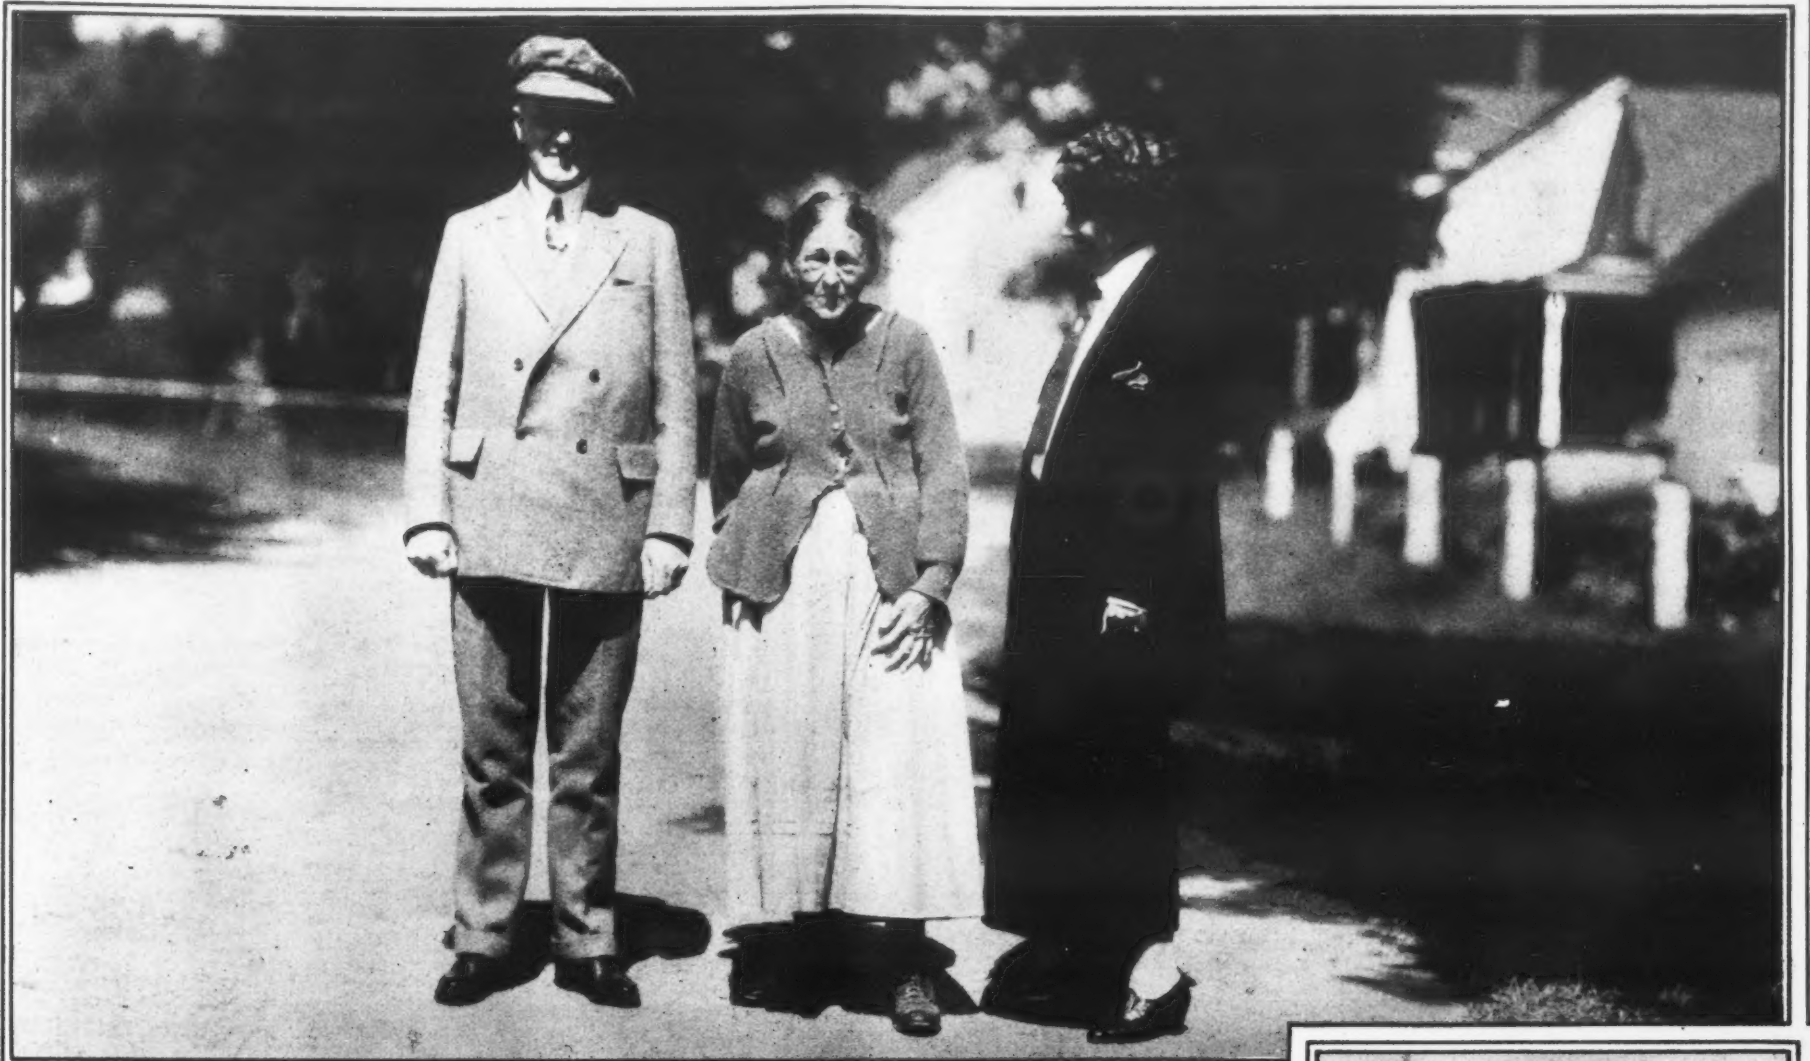

The monument is the creation of Vernon March, and bears the following inscription:

"1615-1915.

"Erected to commemorate the advent into Ontario of the white race under the leadership of Samuel de Champlain, the intrepid French explorer and colonizer, who, with ten companions, arrived in these parts in the Summer of 1615, and spent the following Winter with the Indians, making his headquarters at Cahiague, the chief village of the Hurons, which was near this place. A symbol of good-will between the French and English speaking people of Canada."

KING AND CROWN PRINCE: "BIG BILL" TILDEN and Young Vincent Richards, Deemed the Most Likely Successor to the Throne if the Champion Ever Relinquishes It.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

SEVEN years ago William T. Tilden 2d entered the national doubles championship with a fifteen-year-old boy and won his first national tennis title on grass. Two years later found the Philadelphian started on his long reign as the singles champion, a reign that already has lasted five years and promises to continue several years longer, anyway, unless Tilden abandons the courts.

Comb the ranks of tennis the world over and nowhere will there be found a player worthy to be placed in the same class with the Philadelphian—unless it be the fifteen-year-old boy of 1918, Vincent Richards.

A month or so ago, May 30, to be exact, Richards set the tennis world a-buzzing by defeating Tilden in an invitation tournament at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club in New Jersey. While it was not the first triumph that he had gained over Tilden since the latter became the national title holder, unusual significance was attached to the achievement, and the question was raised on all sides as to whether the world's greatest tennis player was slipping and about to yield his crown to his former protégé. Tilden has since supplied an answer to that question in a manner to end all doubts. Richards has still a considerable way to go before he can hope to cope with the Philadelphian.

But in spite of the successive defeats sustained recently by Richards at the hands of Tilden, he remains the one player generally regarded as the likeliest to dethrone the champion in the future, if Tilden ever is to be dethroned. William Johnston, from whom Tilden took the crown in 1920 and who has tried in vain to regain it every year since, has dropped out of Tilden's class, unless he should show a surprising improvement.

Outside of the United States there are only a handful of players who can be spoken of in the same breath with Tilden. These are James Anderson and Gerald Patterson of Australia, René Lacoste of France, Manuel Alonso of Spain, now living in this country, and perhaps Jean Washer of Belgium. There isn't one of these, with the exception of Anderson, whose chances of defeating Tilden can be rated better than 1 to 100. No one would think of offering even 10 to 1 against Richards.

It is a big feather in the cap of Richards that he should be the only logical opponent for Tilden. Two years ago his decline was being heralded. Patterson could see no future for him at all; on all sides his weakness off the ground was cited as an impassable barrier to any further advancement. Richards has put his critics to rout. And last year he gave the retort courteous to Patterson by scoring a decisive victory over the Australian giant in the Davis Cup challenge round, marking his début as a singles player in the international matches.

16 RUE DE LA PAIX, PARIS.
IN America one perhaps imagines that heat waves only strike New York, but other points of the globe are often similarly affected. Paris had its heat wave simultaneously with New York and never has Paris seen such a gay array of vivid colors. The loveliest pastel shades. The most delicately tinted pink, an almost mystic mauve and a palpitating new blue—something more vivid than "bluet" and less startling than the "Infanta" blue.

Never has the Parisienne so radically turned to the gay hues. A very striking new tone has been in the fuchia gamme and such is particularly remarked because all the smart little jumper frocks made of heavy crêpe, the new picador georgette or even chiffon have their tiny felt or bankok to match or just a shade lighter or darker.

Little jumper frocks in pleated chiffon are particularly lovely and are even trimmed with kasha most effectively.

The real warm weather brings out all the lovely Bianchini and Rodier prints. Gay, dancing ones with great multi-colored poppies or fine, sober ones like old chintzes. The modern silks with their bizarre, often eccentric, designs showing distinctly the influence of the futurists and cubists are very popular, and there are many every day at the races.

Figured silks are most sought in heavy surahs, filmy georgette or heavy crêpe, and are very frequently combined with crêpe of a single color.

At the SIGN of the SPHINX?

First Prize—Fifteen Dollars.

Won by Milton J. Healey, 1,845 Addison Street, Berkeley, Cal.

1—Placements.

In four moves arrange the above pieces so that the squares and circles alternate. Move two adjacent pieces at a time and do not separate them in moving.

2—Missing Words.

Despite his annual rebuff the cricket dropped in upon the ant at the end of the harvest time and broached the subject of enough food to tide him over the season.

Complete the ant's reply by filling in the blank spaces of the following with appropriate words ending in "ant."

"Do not think me a foolish — fellow, — of your self-inflicted troubles. I admit you are a — little chap with a charming voice and a — mind and are — in your speech. Why you let the spring of industry lie — in the — season when there is — work for all of us I — understand. You must — that misery and — are invariably — upon improvidence. Nevertheless I shall not be entirely — to your appeal. On the way out of my garden you may stop at the — and quench your thirst."

—Five dollars awarded to Mrs. John Hird, Woonsocket, R. I.

3—Spending.

A man after arriving at the county fair visited four exhibits. He had to pay five cents to enter each exhibit and five cents to leave it. While in each exhibit he spent half his money, and when he passed through the last gate on his way home he had no money left. How much did he have when he entered the first exhibit?

—Five dollars awarded to Mafalda Evans, 1,268 Kentucky Street, Bowling Green, Ky.

4—Anagram.

One is in count, but not in number;
Two is in rest, also in slumber.
Three is in door, but not in gate;
Four is in saucer, but not in plate.
Five is in second, but not in minute;
Six is in wren, but not in linnet.
Seven is in money, but not in cash;
Eight is in rush, but not in dash.
Nine is in demon, but not in saint;
Ten is in prison, but not in restraint.
Eleven is in conquer, but not in beat;
Twelve is in zero, but not in heat.
Thirteen is in freeze, but not in ice;
Fourteen is in value, but not in price.
Fifteen is in need, but not in want;
Sixteen is in shadow, but not in haunt.
The whole is the name of a present fad,
That charms them all from youngster to dad.

—Five dollars awarded to Mrs. Seymour Nye, 6 Grove Avenue, Norwich, N. Y.

5—Erased Letters.

PRSVRYPRFCTMNVKPTSPRCPTSTN

Here is a famous inscription to be found over the entrance of an ancient monastery in the North of England. The vowel letters have been obliterated. The inscription can be reconstructed by interlarding the line of consonants with one vowel letter. Can you reconstruct it?

—Five dollars awarded to Anna Connell, Blackstone, Mass.

Conducted by Carolyn Wells

BEST BRAIN TEASERS WIN CASH PRIZES EVERY WEEK

FOR the best original contribution printed on this page each week a prize of $15 in cash will be awarded.

For the next best contribution a prize of $10 will be awarded. For each additional contribution published on this page The Mid-Week Pictorial will pay $5.

Each contributor should state that to his best knowledge and belief his contribution has not hitherto been printed in its present form. Answers or solutions must accompany each contribution.

The contest is open to every one except employees of The New York Times Company, and it is not necessary to purchase a copy of The Mid-Week Pictorial, as the magazine may be inspected at any business office of The New York Times Company and at the many public libraries where it is on file. The decisions of the Editor will be made largely on the originality and cleverness of the contribution, and in every case shall be final.

All contributions should be addressed to
THE SPHINX EDITOR, MID-WEEK PICTORIAL,
229 West 43d St., New York, N. Y.

6—Acrostics.

Can you find in the following countries three lists of rivers of which the initial letters, reading downward, spell the names of three cities in the United States?

The countries in which the rivers are found, in the order in which they come, are as follows:

- |                             |                 |
|-----------------------------|-----------------|
| 1—England.                  | 1—Canada.       |
| 2—South America.            | 2—West Siberia. |
| 3—United States and Canada. | 3—France.       |
| 4—South America.            | 4—England.      |
| 5—United States.            | 5—Russia.       |
| 6—England.                  | 6—Egypt.        |

- |                             |
|-----------------------------|
| 1—United States and Canada. |
| 2—Germany.                  |
| 3—England.                  |
| 4—Siberia.                  |
| 5—France and Switzerland.   |
| 6—Norway and Sweden.        |

—Five dollars awarded to Florence B. Hatch, 919 1-2 South Yakima Avenue, Tacoma, Wash.

7—Justice.

Two sons were the heirs to the estate of their deceased father, and they quarreled over the division of the property. A wise old Judge settled the trouble in a novel manner. How did he do it?

—Five dollars awarded to Rev. J. M. Brady, Columbus College, Sioux Falls, S. D.

8—Riddle.

What is complete without a head or with,
Without a tail or with,
And complete with either, both or neither?

—Five dollars awarded to Nina Bateman, 873 West Twenty-eighth Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

Second Prize—Ten Dollars.

Won by Hi Kerr, Wilmington, N. C.

9—Rebus.

STING
M

Only six letters in this rebus are seen;
But the answer to it is a word of sixteen.
Study this group and soon out of the tangle
You see what has led folks to many a wrangle.

10—Hidden Trees.

Can you find the names of nine trees in the following letter?

Dear Margaret: I am going to write a note now, while Ruth is taking her nap. Please don't forget the 4th, and be sure to be here. Don is trying to cop "Lumsley's Prize" this year. Doubt if he can do it though. The Girl Scout troupe are having a weiner roast this eve. Arlene is going as Helen's guest.

I have been wanting to ask you a question for a long time. Is Ethel making good in her studies this year? Hope she is. Here comes June with some pop. Larry will wish he was here.

Yesterday little Eunice Janette Boe came running in to her mother crying, "Mother, a bumblebee chewed my ear." It certainly sounded comical.

Did you have many flowers this year? We did. You should have seen our bed of Iris. They were just a beautiful lavender mass.

Oh, there is Ruth calling. She always calls, "Mama, please come get me, I'm awake."

Must close, as pencil is getting dull. Love,
VIVIAN.

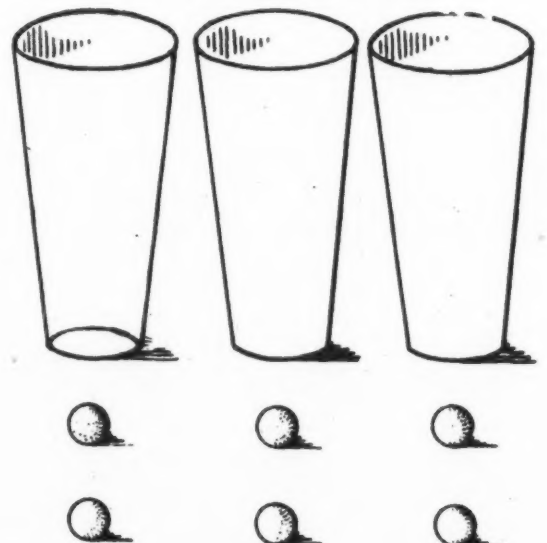

—Five dollars awarded to Kathryn E. Newhard, Springville, Iowa.

11—Problem.

A big tower clock sounds the hour with strokes five seconds apart, while a grandfather's clock in a nearby house has its strokes two and a half seconds apart. If the big clock is fifty seconds fast, what time is it when the smaller clock finishes striking thirty seconds after the big one?

—Five dollars awarded to Charles W. Woolsey, 45 Maple Avenue, Madison, N. J.

12—An Odd Number.

Here are three glasses and six marbles. Can you place an odd number of the marbles in each of the three glasses?

—Five dollars awarded to H. J. Koenen, 19 Thompson Street, New Haven, Conn.

Answers to these "Brain Teasers" will be published next week. Answers to last week's appear on Page 27.

(Times Wide World Studio.)

GRETA NISSEN,
Starring in the Paramount Production, "In the Name of Love," Which Comes to the Rivoli July 19.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

The Movie Chatterbox Says:
IN the annals of motion-picture history it is on record that a certain film producer dictated a cablegram to his secretary addressed to Mr. Charles Dickens of London, England, in which the film magnate offered the writer a pretty sum for the screen rights to his entire works. But those days are passed, and the producers are now picking on live ones. Actual proof of this is contained in the news that Sir James Barrie has consented to write his first original screen story for Famous Players-Lasky. That Scottish master of charming writing has already contributed his bit to the screen with the film version of "Peter Pan" and his well-known story, "A Kiss for Cinderella," will also be filmed for presentation around Christmas time with Betty Bronson of "Peter" fame in the title rôle.

The Warner Brothers have decided to make their biggest production out of "The Sea Beast," the whaling story in which John Barrymore will star. The cast is being assembled, with Priscilla Bonner opposite the star, two ships have been chartered and a large technical staff will soon sail for the coast of Java, where they will pursue the sportive whale in an effort to obtain several big thrills for the photoplay. Mr. Barrymore's rôle will be that of a harpooner of an old-time whaling ship. From Java the expedition will finally join the whaling fleet off the coast of Africa.

"Paths to Paradise" has come to Broadway, and now it's all settled that Ray Griffith is entitled to take his place among the foremost comedians of the screen. Here is a droll fellow attired as a Fifth Avenue promenade, who has a whimsical method all his own of dispensing pure, unalloyed humor. Griffith works by suggestion, much in the manner of Chaplin, and that with his perfect confidence in his ability as a harlequin is responsible for his success. It is reported that the comedian is permitted to take liberties with his stories and that most of the amusing situations are his own. That being the case, here is one excuse for a "Greater Movie Season," which is being sponsored by Mr. Hays and his associates.

Richard Barthelmess has begun work on his latest cinema, "The Beautiful City," with Dorothy Gish playing opposite him and William Powell in the cast. . . . Percy Marmont has been selected to play the title rôle in the film version of Joseph Conrad's story, "Lord Jim," for which a vote of thanks should be tendered to Messrs. Zukor and Lasky. . . . Colleen Moore, after kissing the Blarney Stone and seeing Europe, is now on the way home to America and the studio. . . . Claire Windsor, whose last screen appearance was in "The White Desert," has signed a new contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. . . . James Kirkwood will play opposite Carol Dempster in "That Royle Girl," D. W. Griffith's first production for Paramount.

DORIS KENYON,

"At our price, white man—
she is yours..."

STILL ALIVE, before us on the altar stood the woman we had spent so many perilous months seeking. But what was she doing here among these jungle savages, carrying in her arms their holiest idol? What chance had we to save her, three white men among these hordes of angry blacks?

To enter the sanctuary would be to violate their holiest laws; to touch the hem of her skirt would mean instant destruction.

Suddenly a strangled cry and Haggard sprang toward her. But with a fierce gesture the Arab thrust himself before the altar and set the price of this woman's freedom.

As he made his bargain I gasped with horror, for what he demanded was dearer than gold...

But read the rest of this stirring story for yourself. You can have it and twelve other gripping volumes for free examination if you will mail the coupon at once.

Speaking of Salads-

A Pleasant Thought

Mazola is as delicious and good to eat as the corn from which it comes.

OUR doctor will tell you the health value of crisp, cooling, delicious vegetables and greens. Rich in vitamins, yet easily digested, salads are essential to good health in hot weather.

But the real enjoyment of your favorite salad depends absolutely on the dressing—which is simply prepared with Mazola, the perfect Oil for Salads.

Mazola is a pure, sweet, wholesome oil made from the hearts of full ripened corn. Mazola is not affected by light, heat or climate but maintains its purity almost indefinitely. Even during these hot days, you need not keep Mazola in the ice-box.

Get a can of Mazola. Make up your favorite dressing. Serve it on your favorite salad. You will be surprised at the ease and economy of making the most delicious dressings with Mazola.
